THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, TUESDAY, JAN. 7, 1879.

WE have received a suggestion that something should be done towards rendering our excellent Museum at the City Hall a place in which the Chinese might improve their knowledge of Western industries by the inspection of models and materials from the manufacturing districts of England and other European countries. Our correspondent has apparently overlooked the fact that some time ago an effort was made to give partial effect to a similar proposal by his own. A sum of money was subscribed by, we believe, the Chinese for the purpose of obtaining models of machinery and other articles from Europe, but unfortunately the funds of the City Hall subsequently got so low that we understand an order that had been sent to England for the articles was countermanded. Our correspondent says that the Museum contains at present scarcely anything but what the Chinese as a nation are well acquainted with, and the Museum may therefore be considered as an establishment more for the benefit of the Europeans than the Chinese. These remarks are a little wild. It may be quite true that the Chinese as a nation are acquainted with most of the contents of our Museum, but our Museum is not intended for the Chinese as a nation, but for foreign and native residents in Hongkong. We question very much if the bulk of the Chinese who visit our Museum are as well acquainted with the specimens it contains as are the foreign visitors. Live tigers may be found in China, and the sword fish may occasionally lose his way in the muddy waters of the Pearl river, but we question very much if ninety-nine out of a hundred of the Chinese who visit the Museum had ever seen either the animal or the fish in question previous to their visit to the Hongkong institution. It might as well be argued in regard to that most interesting collection of Hongkong snakes, carefully bottled off in one corner of the Museum, that because those snakes are indigenous to this Island, it is nonsense to place them on exhibition here. Our correspondent also forgets that the Museum is probably primarily intended for the benefit of Europeans, although it is thrown open to the Chinese on six days of the week.

Says our correspondent: "It is very doubtful whether Europeans are very much interested in viewing the sparse collection of birds, beasts, fishes, and other curiosities which the City Hall Museum contains, accustomed as most of us are to museums on a much more extensive scale." We must entirely dissent from this. Considering its size, our Museum is a very excellent and interesting one, while many an important town in England would be only too glad to establish a museum containing one half the specimens found in the two-rooms at the City Hall. As to the interest attached to the Museum, a foreigner and, for the matter of that, a native, can walk into the Museum and gather in the space of half an hour more knowledge of the curiosities of China than he might otherwise obtain during the residence of a lifetime in the country. It is most convenient and important that Europeans arriving here should find a place into which they can walk at a leisure moment, and at once obtain a comprehensive view of the animal, mineral, and artificial, "wonders" of the country in which they are about to take up their residence.

To the Chinese the Museum is of not less interest and importance even in its present condition. They too can study there the animal, mineral, and artificial, wonders of their country. Most of them are, we fear, sadly in need of such information, for there is no cheap press in China to place within reach of everyone a knowledge of natural and, if we may use the term, artificial history.
The City Hall Museum is also not alto-<
